

We Claim:

1. An instrument for tamping material into bone through a subcutaneous path, the instrument comprising a body having a length and a terminus, and
5 including markings located along the length at increments from the terminus.